OVERVIEW

Shane Solinger counsels clients on corporate matters, including mergers and assets acquisitions, contract issues, and corporate governance. With experience spanning a broad range of industries, he has particular depth advising closely held corporations to help them meet their goals throughout all stages of the business cycle—from corporate formation to the sale of the business. Shane is highly skilled at simplifying the complex for his clients—always with the goal of creating a clear actionable path to a meaningful solution.

Prior to beginning his private practice, Shane gained valued insight serving as an intern for an in house legal department. He received his law degree, cum laude, from the University of Wisconsin Law School. During law school, he volunteered with the Wisconsin Innocence Project and served as a managing editor of the Wisconsin Law Review. Shane earned his bachelor's degree from the University of Minnesota, Duluth, where he was vice president of the Pre-Law Club and a scholar at the Center for Ethics and Public Policy.
